KNOX STATE UNIVERSITY

A MESSAGE FROM YOUR COLLEGE PRESIDENT

Here at Knox State University, "Homecoming" means a lot more than the big ringball game against those stuck-up punk bastards Boss Hiss University. It's a time for reflection and reminiscence. We reflect on all the students who failed their pop quizzes in the school of life, and remember the mistakes they made so we don't follow in their ill-fated footsteps. Don't forget! I know everything you damn kids are up to!

Film studies major Wally Maurer discussed his senior project with his professor and revealed, as I suspected, that he hasn't done a goddamn lick of work on it. His girlfriend, Nancy Bierce, on the other hand, is doing Knox State proud with her project. She's accumulating knowledge as head of her very own cult, but more important, she's accumulating power! A student after my own heart? Freshman Collette Richmond took the campus tour and learned how Skip Heller (class of '49, or, as I like to call it, Year Zero) cleared the way for me to dedicate Knox State to the idea of Strength Through Study!

Meanwhile, I'm told that physics major Tim Pike finally got that time machine of his running. Unfortunately, when Tim snagged a version of himself from the future, his roommate Dave accidentally shot it in the head. But what's an education without a few setbacks?
